

It was Happy Independence Day at Tony Roma's Palm Beach!

Typical Fourth of July fare is a regular on the menu at Tony Roma's, so it was the restaurant of choice for many that felt they could not survive Independence Day without their barbecue. Appropriate hats were not only worn by the staff, but awarded to any who wanted them, and this suited the under ten years old crowd perfectly! For the Gamble family of Nashville, Tennessee, who spend every Independence day in Aruba, a meal of holiday favorites at the Palm Beach eatery was their choice.

What is July Fourth without a giant platter of ribs, or grilled steak? Tony Roma's is "famous for ribs" but also their coleslaw, corn on the cob and everything else associated with the holiday, available every day of the year. For those addicted to tender, juicy ribs in heaping portions, it was the place to be!
